THE GREAT WEST.

An Exhibit Supplementary to The Tribune's Trade Inquiry of Last Saturday.

Additional Territory Included Within the Scope of the Present Review.

The Conditions Affecting the States Very Nearly Alike in All Quarters.

Results Entirely Corroborative of the Deductions Made from Earlier Answers.

The Country Rich and Industrious—The Granaries and Stock-Yards Full—Trade Good.

A Tabling of Hopefulness Reported Whenever Special Mention Has Not Distinctly Baleful Truth.

The following replies to the circular of inquiry sent out by THE TRIBUNE last week were received too late for publication with the article which appeared last Saturday. They were every little to the Northwest, as will be seen, are in accord with the information previously obtained. That information had three bearings. Summarily, the country is richer than ever before; the farmers' products are all sold to live hands; the manifest agricultural districts in the Mississippi Valley have, with surprising celerity, invested out of their floating capital in the new States and the Territories west of the Missouri. Depending from these three great facts are a train of interesting results, such as the inclination of the farmers to do their own speculation in their own products; the temporary dullness of trade until the farmer shall choose to sell, the general understanding of the situation to the distributors, and the laudable efforts of the manufacturers to gain transport for the deposit which will be sure to come after so much temporary stagnation. The merchants really overtaken have shown that they are skilled in their calling, and have bought only what their will sell. Money is positively cheaper than last year, because the American borrowers are nearly all out of the market. Everywhere, practically, a good peak is being made, and nearly everywhere the feeling is very hopeful. A fairness of the manufacturers seemed to this solution of honest answers to the questions in THE TRIBUNE's circular gives the same results as were obtained in last Saturday's table. This record fail to impress the reader with a sense of the accuracy with which his inquiry has been made, and the rare absence of economical statements as well with the influence of commercial or general news and rumors.

THE PROSPECTS FOR THE GROWING.

A summary of the inevitable answers answering the inquiries is as follows:

Are the farmers selling their produce freely? Yes, 47; no, 0.

What proportion of their products remains to be sold? Large, 0; small, 47.

Are the farmers paying their debts? Yes, 47; no, 0.

Are the farmers buying more goods than last year? Yes, 47; no, 0.

Are the farmers buying their supplies with greater care, or as much as last year? Yes, 47; no, 0.

Are the manufacturers in your locality busy? Yes, 47; no, 0.

Are they making money? Yes, 47; no, 0.

What is the general feeling about the future? Hopeful, 47; discouraged, 0.
